

IN STITCHES

From the collaborative efforts of architect David Rockwell and designer Maya Romanoff comes Stitched, one of three new wallcoverings offered in the David Rockwell for Maya Romanoff Collection. Inspired by Romanoff's

Weathered Walls series, the line is made of hand-dyed paper fashioned to look like leather, with rows of stitching adding texture. The collection is available in 10 colorways, including Orange and Blue on Brown, which are pictured here. Purchase the wallcovering at John Brooks Inc., (480) 675-8828.

FEELING BLUE

Reminiscent of the simple geometric forms found in Teco pottery from the 1900s, Prairie Arts has introduced its own Teco Art Pottery Collection™. The line consists of seven decorative vases available in six glaze colors, including the Large Double Gourd Vase shown here in blue. It is available at the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation Store, (480) 627-5398.

SIT-DOWN MEALS

Clean lines, elegance and classic design define one of interior designer Barbara Barry's latest ventures, a dinnerware collection called Musical Chairs, featuring her signature chair designs as motifs. The dishwasher-safe line of fine china is made in England by Wedgwood and includes five-piece place settings, along with mugs and a tea set. Find a local retailer that carries the dinnerware at wedgwoodusa.com.
